

Understanding your Grid Totals Page

The Credential grid totals page is a summary of all the coursework and training, used to fulfill the Education and Training component requirement of a Gateways Credential.

- 1 On the far left side of your totals page are the names of colleges and/or universities that have helped you obtain points, as well as the organizations where you completed Credential approved training.
- 2 The total at the bottom of each column shows the total number of points you have in a particular Content Area.
- 3 The total at the bottom of the column labeled "Totals" shows the number of points you have for a particular Credential.
- 4 You can look at the bottom of your totals page to see these requirements broken down by Credential and level. Remember, you need a specific total of points in each Content Area depending on the Credential and level you are working to obtain. Your eligibility letter will also give you this information in detail, including where you may need additional points to become eligible.

Other Important Information

- The transcript review to determine Credential eligibility is not the same as the Basic Transcript Review (BTR). Therefore, you may see a difference in the total number of points/hours between the two reviews.
- Not all coursework will receive full credit toward Credential eligibility. If you have specific questions about what may receive full credit and what may not, please contact your Credential Counselor directly.
- Your grid totals page may change over time as you submit additional completed coursework and/or training. Please be sure to reference your most recent totals page and eligibility letter when determining your needs for Credential eligibility.
